Cairine Wilson

About the House

Cairine Wilson was Canada's first female senator, appointed in 1930. Ms. Wilson served her country as a senator and undertook to represent Canada as a delegate to the United Nations. She also worked to assist refugees in leaving dangerous situations and coming to Canada

Wilson students gladly and generously help others, and provide support and encouragement to those in difficulty. They are positive and dedicated, and work for the benefit of others besides themselves.

To give of ourselves and never count the cost for others' greater need
